DETAILED ACTION

In response to the Office action mailed August 18, 2005, Applicants had elected a single species of the combination of Ar1 of formula (2) and Ar2 of formula (30) for examination in that new claims 7-8 are readable on the elected species.

The search has been done, but no prior art has been found, and the search will be expanded to other species in the claims.

Claims 7-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chem Abstract 129: 331117 in view of 136: 247987.

129: 331117 discloses poly [1,4-phenylene vinylene (3-trimethylsilyl-1,4-phenylene) was synthesized to have photoconducting behavior and electroluminescence characteristic, comprising the steps of copolymerizing at least one Ar1 containing aromatic dialdehyde and at least one Ar2 containing aromatic diphosphonium monomer (see page 30).

The disclosure of the reference differs from the instant claims in that it does not disclose the claimed Ar1. However, the reference does disclose the use of an aromatic component in an aromatic dialdehyde reactant.

136: 247987 discloses the claimed Ar1 containing aromatic dialdehyde in that Ar1 can be read on the claimed formula (13), (see pages 21-23), to react with an phosphonic acid ester containing compound.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the Ar1 containing aromatic dialdehyde, as disclosed in 136: 247987, to replace the Ar1 containing aromatic dialdehyde, as disclosed in 129: 331117, in order to gain the advantages of the combination of the references, that being a polyphenylene vinylene polymer which has the added properties of being light emitting polymer and electrochemical photoluminescence---.

129: 331117 discloses the reaction product of an Ar1 containing aromatic dialdehyde with an Ar2 containing aromatic diphosphonium monomer, but does not disclose the claimed specific Ar1 containing aromatic dialdehyde.

136: 247987 discloses the claimed Ar1 containing aromatic dialdehyde is well known in the art and can react with phosphonic acid ester containing compound.

The replacement of an aromatic dialdehyde of 129: 331117 by the use of that in 136: 247987 to react with an Ar2 containing aromatic diphosphonium monomer to form the products having the added properties would not provide an unexpected result to one of ordinary skill in the art.
